A Suggestion of Value.-We read in a late number of Bell's Messenger, that Commander Long, late of H. B. M. S. Fantome, in his report to the Admiralty respecting the monument erected to the memory of Capt. Cook at Kealakekua Bay, concludes by suggesting that, if it should be desired to erect a better memorial, the addition of a "Captain Cook's Ward" to the Honolula Hospital "would be an appropriate arrangement and well fitted to perpetuate the memory of the distinguished discoverer of the islands, one of whose greatest cares was the health and comfort of his

Kona, Hawaii, July 18th, 1877. Mr. EDITOR: In your issue of June 23d, you speak of the unusual high price of the Hawaiian staff of life-" pol." The same remark may be applied to this, and other sections of this Island. It appears from all accounts, that the want of the Hawaiian staff of life, has been more severely felt this year, than for many years past, especially in the districts of Kobala, Kan and Kona nei; the price being a hundred, or a hundred and fifty per cent higher, than was ever known before, and, consequently,-as in Honolulu, the people, both foreigners and natives, are driven to the necessity of subsisting on the chinese staff of life-"rice." For instance, we meet with natives from Kekaha, -and ask them what they find to subsist on in that section? they invariably answer-rice. Again, we meet with other parties who live some 25 miles in an opposite direction, when the same question is asked, and they answer-rice. But many of the natives are too poor to be able to afford themselves such a luxury as rice, consequently, they are obliged to subsist on fruits, such as mangoes, bananas, pine apples, mountain apples or chias &c., this being the season when such fruits ripen. Other natives subsist on ki root, hapu, pala, and green or unripe pumpkins

For the past month, we have been blessed by many refreshing showers, and the face of mother earth is wearing a beautiful mantle of green, vegetation and produce generally, is in a very flourishing and thriving condition, and there is every prospect that in a few months more, the native staff of life will be pientiful, "So mote G. Hawaiian Sugar-Growing.

Advices from Honolula state that the desire to engage in the cultivation of sugar cane has become a perfect furore, and that clerks. professional men, and in fact individuals of almost every class are turning their attention to an industry which has made the fortunes of those engaged in it. As an instance of the excitement ruling, it may be mentioned that a half interest in one plantation has been sold for $500,-000, and the purchaser is congratulated upon the prospect of becoming a millionare, while other planters are represented to be actually for its negotiation the Hawaiian Minister of an eternal debt of gratitude is said to be due to him from the Hawaiian kingdom for his statesmanship as evinced in that beneficent measure. But still the Hawaiians are not happy. The scurces of wealth revealed to them are incapable of being developed to their full extent without an additional supply of labor, and more labor, or at least more agricultural labor, is the chief thought in their minds. The Government has resolved upon sending a Diplomatic Envoy to London in furtherance of a scheme for introducing families of East Indians, and the Board of Emi-gration is about to send to China for a supply to encourage the emigration of white working men and their families by grants of land and other inducements. We heartily wish our neighbors in the Pacific islands all success in the extension of their sugar-planting interest, and only hope they will not lose sight, in the excitement of new-found wealth, of the prudence which has hitherto characterized their exertious to develop the field opened to them by unrestricted commerce with the United States. If they do not overdo things, there is not only the possibility but the probability of a trade with San Francisco far greater than was ever dreamt of even by the most sanguine advocates of a treaty the effects of which are just beginning to be felt. They will find here a ready market for their products, were tenfold greater than at present, and Honolalu may prove in return to be a very important customer for our manufactures and for such supplies as the islands do not produce.—S. SATURDAY, JULY 28. OUR TAX LAWS.

On Saturday last a meeting of merchants and others was held at the room of the Honoluly Chamber of Commerce, to take into consideration the subject of the new law passed by the last legislature whereby a system of double taxation is imposed. The law in question is comprised in Sections 483 and 484 of the Civil Code, as amended, which read as follows: " Section 483. All personal property of whatever kind, not

"Section 483. All personal property of whatever kind, not subject to specific taxes, or specially exempted from taxation, shall be subject to an annual tax of three-quarters of one per cent. upon the full cash valuation thereof. The term "personal property" shall be construed to include all household furniture, goods and chattels, wares and merchandise, all ships and vesseis whether at home or abroad, all moneys, notes of hand, unsecured debts, growing crops, public stocks, stocks in corporations, and every species of property not included in real extate."

"Section 484. There shall be assessed and collected upon all real property within the Kingdom, not specially exempted from taxation, an annual tax of three-quarters of one per cent. on the full cash value of the same, to be assessed in the discounter of the same to be assessed. on the full cash value of the same, to be assessed. The term trict where situated irrespective of any mortgage. The term "real property" with respect to the assessment and collection of revenue, shall be deemed to include all lands and town lots, with the buildings, structures, and other things erected on, or

It will be evident upon reading these sections, that no owner of " notes of hand, unsecured debts, growing crops, public stocks or stocks in corporations," can expect the assessor to omit any of those items of property, and also owners of real estate may rely with certainty on that species of property receiving its assessment " irrespective of any mortgages." Whether this kind of taxation is authorized by the Constitution or not, is a question which only the Supreme Court is competent to answer; and until the plain requirements of the law are held of hope of what we call human happiness ever by that tribunal to be repugnant to the constitution, the duty of the assessors and of the Minister of Finance is to execute the law as it stands.

For instance, the law taxes real estate-as well as notes of hand-at its full cash value, without deduction by reason of mortgages. Stocks in corporations are taxable to their holder cross swell. Made East Maui at daylight of the 21st, bearing or owner, at their full value, without first in 35 years his labor as a convict would fetch deducting from the entire market value of the real estate owned by the corporation.

A solution of the difficulty which has been suggested is, for the Ministers to take the responsibility of exempting mortgaged property from taxes to the extent of its encumbrances, and to order the assessors not to assess stock, or else to omit corporation real estate. But the objection to this course is that it would be more unconstitutional than the statutes themselves, of which we complain, could possibly be : for Ministers are authorized to execute, not to life, nor any higher respect for its legal and judiset aside the laws, and it is not for them to say cial institutions, whose justice is called into that any duly enacted statute is void.

The questions which will be raised are intri- assumption of a prerogative which belongs to cate and important; they have received consideration in the courts of California, with varying results, for several years. The " Political Code" of that state (1872) under the head of "definitions," has the following: "The term 'real estate' includes the ownership of, claim to, possession of, or right to the possession of land." * * " The term improvements includes all buildings, structures, fixtures, fences, and improvements erected upon or affixed to the land." " All fruit, nut bearing or ornamental trees and vines, not of natural growth." "The term full cash value ' means the amount at which the property would be appraised if taken in payment of a just debt due from a solvent debtor.

Section 3640 of the same Code reads as follows: "The owner or holder of stock in any firm or corporation, the entire capital or pro- C. BREWER & perty whereof is assessed, must not be assessed individually for his stock in such firm or corporation." This last is a provision which enunciates the principle now contended for here, to wit, that the same property cannot be assessed twice: and to avoid complications in the future its tenor should be incorporated in our civil code, as soon

The public will watch with interest the result of the proceedings in the Snpreme Court on the subject of our tax laws.

Since our remarks on capital punishment in our last issue, we have noticed a singular article referring to this question, in the Bulletin of San Francisco, which comments upon some curious enquiries of a writer in the Chicago Times on the circumstances attending all the executions that have taken place in the United States from the commencement of this year to the date of that writing. The whole number of executions for the half year just clapsed in the United States was 37 in all, not including those of the 10 "Molly Maguires" lately hanged in Pennsylvania. The object of the writer in the Chicago Times is, to show, by the demeanor of those 37 criminals, that hanging has no terrors for most criminals, as all died in the belief that they were to go straight to Paradise, save one wretch, William Meeks, of Georgia, who was convicted of adultery and murder, and had to be carried to the drop, but spoke freely and sensibly. The 36 others "died game," says the Times writer. George Williams, colored, of Georgia, convicted of killing his son, said on the scaffold: "I am a soldior of the cross, and feel resigned to die. I am innocent of the crime, and feel my way clear to glory." Simon Ragland, colored, of North Carolina, convicted of rape, said that "as soon as his soul left his body, he would fly straight to heaven." Three were executed for killing their wives; ten for robbery and murder; three for murder and outrage. In the Northern States, the executions were for murder exclusively. No women were executed amongst the 37 cases of hanging. The writer concludes that hanging has little or no effect on those executed, nor on the class of people who go to witness the executions,-arguing from the circumstances attending these 37 executions. The absurdity of hanging a man who coining money out of their crops. The main | thinks that thereby he is being sent off straight cause of this sudden access of properity is the reciprocity treaty with the United States, and the effect likely to be produced on the minds of Foreign Affairs is extolled beyond measure, and criminals or evil doers who may happen to witness such a spectacle. Hanging is stript of its terrors by the real or assumed calmness of the criminals. The man who is hanged seemingly dies as happily as the greatest saint, and the vicious crowd who witness or hear of the execution say, "The murderer who was hanged died happy! what more do we want? we must all die somehow, and it appears that a fellow can die as happily on the scaffold as in his bed," or words to that effect. So that hanging becomes a farce, whether as a punishment of the criminal, or a > own concluding remarks are echoed by the writer in the Bulletin, who says :-"Beyond question the worst use to which a man can be put is to hang him. But if executions have little or no terrors for those who are the central figures in them, and still less for those who witness them and for whose moral improvement they are designed, it may be questioned whether it is altogether right that they should be continued. Imprisonment for life ought to have a more restraining influence on the vicious than those ecstatic gallows scenes, in which the expiring culprit is usually transformed into an ascending angel."
